The diagram illustrates a staircase with 5 steps. A large rectangle represents the total height of the staircase, which is divided into 5 equal horizontal segments by 4 horizontal lines. To the right of this large rectangle, a smaller rectangle is shown, representing the height of one step. This smaller rectangle is positioned such that its top edge aligns with the top of the large rectangle, and its bottom edge aligns with the bottom of the large rectangle. This visualizes that the total height is 5 times the height of one step.
